PREFACE

The following item is from the letter sent out by the secretary, under date of October 15, 1929.

At the annual meeting of the Hubbard family a committee was appointed to revise the Hubbard genealogy.

This committee consists of Mr. Albert Wilcox, Mr. W. B. Rice, Mrs. Wilbur Chamberlain, all of Meriden, Conn., Miss Mary B. Hubbard of Wolfeboro, N. H. and our president, Mr. Harry B. Hubbard of West Haven, Conn. The committee has met and made preliminary plans.

The contemplated book will include new material which has not yet been printed.

PREFACE TO EDITION OF 1903

AT an annual meeting of the HUBBARD FAMILY it was voted that MISS ELLEN R. HOUGH and ALBERT H. WILCOX be appointed a committee to collect material for the preparation of a history of our branch of the HUBBARD FAMILY. We herewith submit the result. We gratefully acknowledge the assistance received from the works of the late EDMUND TUTTLE; also our obligations to HARLAN PAGE HUBBARD's "One Thousand Years of Hubbard History," for information received. Also we wish to thank those friends who have assisted in the compilation of this book.

So far as possible, each descendant from HON. WILLIAM HUBBARD herein mentioned is numbered consecutively; and by carefully following these numbers any member may be readily traced backward or forward at pleasure. These same numbers are adopted in the biographical sketches, thus enabling a ready reference from the genealogy to the biography.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

"As early as 1630," ten years after the Pilgrim Fathers set their feet on Plymouth Rock, Mr. William Hubbard left his island home and came to seek a home amid the wilds of America. After a few years he established himself at Ipswich, Mass., which town he represented in the General Court six years, between 1638 and 1646. He afterwards removed to Boston, and died about 1670, leaving three sons, William, Richard, and Nathaniel.

REV. WILLIAM HUBBARD,

the eldest, was born in England in 1621, and came to this country with his father when about nine years of age; was educated at Harvard College and received his Bachelor degree at the age of twenty-one years. For the next fourteen years we have little knowledge of his employment, but the probability is that he studied theology and assisted Rev. Thomas Cobbit in the ministry at Ipswich. "About the year 1657 he was ordained as the colleague of Mr. Cobbit, who, though in the prime of his usefulness, required an assistant on account of the extent and arduousness of his ministerial labors." "Ipswich, at that period, was a desirable situation for a young clergyman."

There was hardly a place in New England, at the time of Mr. Hubbard's settlement, which had so large a proportion among its population of gifted, intelligent minds. It had been settled by men of good rank and quality, many of whom had the yearly revenue of large estates in England before they came to this wilderness.

As Mr. Cobbit continued active in his ministerial duties until old age, Mr. Hubbard must have enjoyed considerable leisure, which seems to have been employed in historical investigations.

Mr. Hubbard's first historical work was a narrative of the troubles with the Indians, in 1676-7, with a supplement concerning the war with the Pequots, in 1637, to which is annexed a table and postscript in twelve pages. Also, a narrative of the troubles with the Indians in New England from Pascataqua to Paumaquid. The whole was published in Boston in 1677. The same work was also printed in London, in 1677, under the title of "The Present State of New England." Mr. Hubbard was also in England in 1678. His "History of New England" was completed in 1680, to which period the narration of events is continued. In that year it was submitted to the examination of the General Court of Massachusetts, who appointed a committee consisting of William Stoughton, Capt. Daniel Fisher, Lieut. William Johnson and Capt. William Johnson to peruse it and give their opinion. The chirography of Mr. Hubbard was not easy to read, and this probably was the reason why the committee did not complete the service assigned them for nearly two years afterwards.

On the eleventh of October, 1682, the General Court granted fifty pounds to the author, as "a manifestation of thankfulness" for this history, "he transcribing it fairly, that it may be more easily perused." It appears that he procured some person to copy his work, as the manuscript which now exists in the archives of the Mass. Historical Society, and plainly written in upwards of three hundred pages, is not in his handwriting, but has his commendation. It was published by the Mass. Historical Society, encouraged by a very liberal subscription of the Legislature to it, for the use of the Commonwealth, and it makes the Vth and VIth volumes of the second series of the Society's collections.

On the fifth of November, 1685, Mr. Cobbit, the senior pastor, died, aged 77 years. For two years afterwards Mr. Hubbard was alone in the ministry. But in 1687 he received as his colleague Rev. John Davison. But this connection was brief, for Mr. Davison died in 1689. Three years afterwards Rev. John Rogers, son of President Rogers, was ordained as colleague to Mr. Hubbard. This connection was probably the more agreeable to him, as Mr. Rogers was a nephew of Mr. Hubbard's first wife.

In 1688 Mr. Hubbard was invited to officiate at the Commencement of that year, and received from Sir Edmund Andros the following notice of his appointment:

"Sir Edmund Andros, Knight, &c., to Rev. William Hubbard, greeting:

"WHEREAS, the Presidency or Rectorship of Harvard College, in Cambridge, within this, his Majesty's territory and dominion of New England, is now vacant, I do therefore, with the advice of Council by these presents constitute, authorize and appoint you, the said William Hubbard, to exercise and officiate as President of the said College, at the next Commencement to be had for the same, in as full and ample a manner as any former President or Rector hath or ought to have enjoyed.

"Given under my hand and seal, at Boston, the 2nd day of June, in the fourth year of his Majesty's reign, Anno Domini, 1688."

There was a manifest propriety in Mr. Hubbard's being selected to officiate in this capacity, as he was the oldest clergyman then living in New England of the Alumni of the College. And his character and his talents entitled him to the distinction. Dr. Eliot, whose characters have been considered as drawn with considerable discrimination bestows a full share of praise on Mr. Hubbard, saying, "he was certainly, for many years, the most eminent minister in the county of Essex. Equal to any in the province for learning and candor, and superior to all his contemporaries as a writer."

Governor Hutchinson gives him the character of a man of learning, and of a candid, benevolent mind.

Mr. Hubbard died September 14, 1704, at the age of eighty-three years. The publications issued by him, beside those already named, were the Election Sermon, 1676; A Fast Sermon, in 1682; A Funeral Sermon on the Death of Major General Daniel Davison, 1684; and A Testimony to the Order of the Gospel in the Churches of New England in connection with Rev. John Higginson of Salem.

Mr. Hubbard married Margaret, daughter of Rev. Nathaniel Rogers, and great-granddaughter of Rev. John Rogers, who was burnt at the stake in Smithfield, England, February 4th, 1555, for his unyielding devotion to the truth as it is in Jesus.

At the age of seventy-three Mr. Hubbard was married to Mary, widow of Samuel Pearce. This marriage, according to Rev. W. Frisbie, excited the displeasure of his parish, for though she was a serious, worthy woman, she was rather in the lower scenes of life, and not sufficiently fitted, as they thought, for the station.

(39) REV. JOHN HUBBARD, grandson of Rev. William Hubbard, of Ipswich, was born at Ipswich, Mass., in 1677. He graduated at Harvard College in 1695, and settled as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Jamaica, Long Island, in 1698; when, after a ministry of seven years, he died October 5th, 1705, at the premature age of twenty-eight years and nine months, and was doubtless the first minister buried in that town. A particular account of his death may be seen in the Boston News Letter of October 22, 1705, No. 79. He was one of the most excellent and amiable youths which New England had produced, and his death was extensively and deeply lamented.

(53) DR. JOHN HUBBARD, son of Rev. John Hubbard, of Jamaica, was born at Jamaica, Long Island, November 30, 1703. At the age of two years he lost his father, after which he, with his mother, removed to Boston, where he received the rudiments of a good education at a grammar school. We next find the family at Hartford, Conn., where his mother, Mrs. Hubbard, was married to Rev. Samuel Woodbridge, of East Hartford.

At the age of seventeen Dr. Hubbard became apprenticed to a physician. In 1724 he was married to Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens.

In the winter of 1726-7 he settled in New Haven, where he spent the remainder of his days. He resided on Chapel Street, near the corner now occupied by the New Haven Hotel.

"The Rector and Trustees of Yale College in New England at their Commencement Anniversary in A. D. 1730, in the reign of George II., conferred the honorary degree of Master of Arts upon Dr. John Hubbard, of New Haven, for his eminent attainments in the Latin and Greek languages, as well as in Philosophy, Medicine, Poetry and Belles letters—attainments chiefly due to his own native enthusiasm and unaided efforts.” Whereupon, in testimony of his gratitude, he wrote a poem in praise and commemoration of the benefactors of Yale College, and caused it to be printed with an appropriate dedication.

The Rev. Elisha Williams, who was Rector of the College at that time, being a very intimate friend of Dr. Hubbard, sent a copy of this poem to London, to the Rev. Dr. Isaac Watts, who had but a short time before given some of his own published writings to the Library of Yale College. This eminent theologian, himself a most rare poet, responded that he had taken great pleasure in these first fruits of Anglo-American poetry, so polished and so pure. And he moreover sent this volume, or book of his own lyrics, from England, inscribed with his own hand, “To the worthy Dr. Hubbard as a testimonial of friendship and respect.” On the occasion of the marriage of his eldest daughter, Elizabeth, to Rev. Dr. Ezra Stiles, Dr. Hubbard gave this volume to him, with the following words: “This volume, given to me by Dr. Watts many years ago, I have ever regarded as a token of higher consideration than any that has been hitherto accorded me from among men. Now that I am old, I entrust it to you, as a pledge of my friendship, and my most sincere regard; as such, receive it, I entreat you; guard it with diligence, and, above all, never forget its origin.” (Ezra Stiles).

The following is taken from the New Haven Journal and the New Haven Post Boy, dated Friday, November 5, 1773: “Last Saturday Colonel (That is, Dr.) John Hubbard departed this life; who for many years has been one, and the chief, of the civil authority, and Representative of this town, Judge of Probate for this District, and one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of New Haven. A gentleman of superior genius, delicate taste and good education, an honest, faithful man, an able, upright Judge, an exemplary Christian; who having served his generation by the will of God, fell asleep, with a hope full of immortality, grounded on the grace of the gospel, aged 70."

"His highest praise, to heaven alone
A Christian heart, was fully known,
Genius and taste and moral worth
Distinguished him while here on earth,
Superior powers with manly zeal,
Exerted for the public weal,
In every station he sustained Honored the trusts, his merits gained."

(83) REV. JOHN HUBBARD,

son of Dr. John Hubbard, of New Haven, was educated at Yale College, graduated in 1744, and invited by the Congregational Church of Meriden to become their pastor in November, 1767. This vote, however, was not unanimous, as forty-two were in favor of the call, and twenty-one opposed to it. At the society meeting the votes on the proposal to present a call to Mr. Hubbard stood sixty-five in the affirmative, and thirty-seven in the negative. They also voted to give him a settlement, as it was called, that is a gift of £100 at his settlement, and an annual salary of £80, which was about equal to $250.00, one-half of which was to be paid in wheat, rye and corn.

But the division indicated by these votes appears to have been a very serious one, and the feelings excited in the church very strong; for before these votes could be carried out the minority opposed to Mr. Hubbard invited the consociation of the County to meet in Meriden, and laid before them certain charges against the orthodoxy of Mr. Hubbard. The Consociation cited Mr. Hubbard to appear before them. He refused, on the ground that they had no authority in the case; whereupon they voted to withdraw his license to preach, and, so far as they were concerned, silenced him. The church proceeded nevertheless, and invited a council to assemble December 29, 1767, to ordain Mr. Hubbard. They met, but on the same day the Consociation of the County also assembled in Meriden at the invitation of the minority. The council prepared to ordain Mr. Hubbard agreeably to the wishes of the majority. The Consociation assembled to aid and advise the minority in opposing the ordination. There was thus presented the unseemly spectacle of two ecclesiastical bodies assembled as rallying points for the two parties into which the church was divided. Both of these bodies continued in session four days, sending from one to the other letters, resolutions and remonstrances; becoming themselves more and more excited, and, of course, exasperating the feud among the people, which had already become intense. At length both bodies adjourned, and the ordination was deferred. But it seems the difficulties only became worse; for at the next session of the Legislature, in May, 1768, the minority party opposed to Mr. Hubbard presented a petition to that body, with an account of their condition and grievances. The Legislature, in October, 1768, heard the petition, and granted the minority a release from all taxes laid for the support of Mr. Hubbard. The Legislature further advised the church to refer the whole affair, with all their difficulties, to a certain number of ministers and laymen, selected by a committee of the Legislature, and to yield unreserved compliance with their decision. But the majority refused assent to this recommendation.

The affair seems to have excited a good deal of attention throughout the State; for letters and statements respecting all these proceedings appeared in the papers, and several pamphlets were published in which the affair, with all its bearings and the principles involved, were earnestly discussed.

At length, on the 22d of June, 1769, Mr. Hubbard was ordained. But so strong was the feeling among the ministers of the State that few of them took part in the ordination; and a council, composed principally of persons out of the State, convened at Meriden and performed the required ceremonies.

In consequence of his settlement a portion of the church and society seceded, organized themselves as a separate body, and maintained public worship. They met for some years in a private house belonging to Capt. Shaler, about one mile from the Center. In 1770 there were but eight or nine families who met there. Gradually they all returned.

Mr. Hubbard was a man of very great firmness and decision of character, especially where vital principles were involved.

And yet he possessed an unusually kind and amiable disposition, and was courteous towards his opponents. His persevering course of conciliatory conduct slowly affected the minds of those who had opposed him until they all returned to an attendance on his ministrations.

About the year 1783 Mr. Hubbard was seriously injured by being thrown from his sleigh, and thereby disabled from preaching. He lingered until November 18, 1786, and died. He was a man of about the medium size, with an unusually pleasant and benignant countenance. His pleasing manners and amiable disposition won for him the affections of the people. As a preacher he was animated and interesting. His theological views would accord with those now generally held by the Orthodox Congregationalists of New England.

The following is taken from the Connecticut Journal, dated New Haven, Wednesday, November 22, 1786:

“ On the 18th inst. died the Rev. John Hubbard, senior pastor of the church in Meriden, in the 60th year of his age. After receiving a liberal education in Yale College, where he graduated in 1744, he at length settled in the ministry at Meriden. Here he labored to good acceptance and with apostolic fidelity for a number of years, until by the providence of God, he was disabled from his work, about two years since. The Rev. Mr. Willard was last June ordained colleague pastor with him. His interment was on Monday last, when the Rev. Dr. Dana preached a sermon suitable to the occasion, after which the funeral was attended both by his relatives and by an affectionate and mournful flock, with every mark of esteem and respect towards a beloved and worthy pastor, and a character venerable for piety and virtue. He entertained the highest ideas of the dignity and divinity of Jesus Christ, of salvation by sovereign grace, of the merits of the Redeemer's atonement and His glorious righteousness, which he judged the only foundation of a sinner's justification and acceptance with God, while he was a firm advocate for moral virtue and real holiness of heart and life. Very useful was he to his people during his ministry, and never was a pastor more sincerely beloved by his flock, which, in his visitations as well as in the ministration of the sanctuary, beheld his face as it had been the face of an angel, for he was conversant among them with gravity, prudence, wisdom and benevolence.”

(54) DANIEL HUBBARD, son of Rev. John Hubbard, of Jamaica, Long Island. Graduated at Yale College, in 1727, and was tutor there from 1728 to 1731. He studied law and removed to New London, and was admitted an inhabitant by vote in 1731, and was regarded as the best practising attorney in the place. In 1735 he was High Sheriff of the county.

(100) MAJOR GENERAL JOHN HUBBARD, son of Rev. John Hubbard, resided in New Haven, Conn. He united with the First Congregational Church in 1772, at the age of twenty-one years. He was elected a deacon of that church, in 1797, which office he held for thirty-one years, and for twenty years was absent from church but one day and a half, although he resided three miles from church. He was also a highly esteemed military commander, holding the office of Major-General, and on the occasion of his retiring from his command, Hon. John Cotton Smith, Governor of the State, sent him a communication expressive of his high regard for him as a man, and military commander.

(101) DEACON ISAAC HUBBARD, son of Rev. John Hubbard, was in all relations of life an exemplary, earnest and honest hearted christian. He died suddenly July 5, 1796. Thus passed away from earth one who walked with God while here below.

(168) COLONEL THOMAS HUBBARD was a worthy member of the First Congregational Church of Meriden for more than half a century; and although his home was three miles from church, few were the Sabbaths that he was not in his place in the house of God during all that time, and in the Sabbath School also. He was temperate and regular in all his habits, upright and virtuous in his life. He was a true friend of the oppressed in those dark days when few were willing to be known as abolitionists. He was a member of the State Militia, having enlisted July 14, 1806, in the Third Company, Second Regiment of Cavalry (Jared Cook commanding). As a private soldier he was called to serve in the War of 1812, and was at Stonington when that town was invaded by the British. August 25, 1814, he was chosen sergeant, and October 13, 1814, he was appointed cornet of the company in which he enlisted, the commission being signed by John Cotton Smith. October 20, 1817, he was appointed second lieutenant, and May 20, 1821, captain of Second Company, First Regiment Horse Artillery. May 30, 1823, he was appointed Major, and June 3, 1824, Lieutenant Colonel of First Regiment Horse Artillery. These commissions were signed by Oliver Wolcott, and still bear the beautiful seal of the State of Connecticut.

(170) JOHN HUBBARD, son of Deacon Isaac Hubbard, was a farmer by occupation, living at the old homestead near Spruce Glen; a quiet, peaceable man, a friend of the oppressed, and a worthy member of the Congregational Church for more than fifty years. He belonged to a military company which was originally organized to fight the Indians, and was called Squatters."

(165) DANA HUBBARD,

X born in New Haven, Conn., married Asenath Dorman of Hamden, and in March, 1815, started for Pittsburgh, walking the entire distance from Philadelphia and making as good time as the stages. In May of the same year Mrs. Hubbard followed him. The journey was a trying and perilous one. She was seven days and nights in passing by stage from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, carrying her boy, Chester, a babe of six months. The whole journey required fifteen days, the distance from New Haven to Philadelphia being made by a sloop. The family moved to Wheeling, Va., in April, 1819, and joined the M. E. Church, Fourth Street, the same year, being interested and prominent in that denomination through life.

(171) EZRA STILES HUBBARD, went to reside in New Haven, Conn., when about sixteen years of age, continuing there during his life. He united with the Center Church, and his christian course was beautifully, consistently onward and upward. His son says of him: "My father has done his life's work well, unable from feeble health to live the scholar's life to which he had been destined by his uncle, President Stiles, and honoring learning next to godliness, he endeavored to give his children every advantage attainable for scholarship, devoting his life, labors and scanty means to this one object." For thirty-four years he was connected with the New Haven Bank, in its employ, and one of its officers says of him: "Never a harsh word passed, nor had I ever occasion to indulge a bitter feeling. Both personally and officially I reposed the utmost confidence in him, and had never the slightest reason to question his integrity, and I never heard a word or saw an act of his to lead one to doubt his piety."

(194) CHESTER DORMAN HUBBARD, was born in Hamden, Conn., and removed in infancy with his parents to Pennsylvania, living near Pittsburgh until 1819, when the family moved to Wheeling, Va., where he resided until his death, a period of seventy-two years. He graduated from Wesleyan College, Middletown, Conn., with the first honors, in 1840, delivering the valedictory. He returned to Wheeling, where he went into the lumber business with his brother. In 1853 he was elected president of the Bank of Wheeling, devoted most of his time to that institution till he was elected to Congress in 1865. In 1871 he became secretary of the Wheeling Iron and Nail Company, and was continuously in that position till his death. In 1852, and again in 1853, he was elected a member of the Virginia Legislature. In 1861 he was chosen a member of the State Convention which met at Richmond and passed the Ordinance of Secession. He spoke and voted against seceding, and was denounced, and even threatened, for his course. In 1863 he represented his district in the State Senate of West Virginia. In 1865 he was elected a member of Congress, and two years later re-elected. He was also president of the Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Kentucky Railroad. He was a prominent official member of the Chapline Street M. E. Church.

(195) HENRY BALDWIN HUBBARD, was born in Allegheny County, Pa., and when three years of age his father moved to Wheeling, Va. He received what was in those days a splendid education, and spent one year at Wesleyan University continuing through life a studious man, being much interested in geological matters. He was among the first to enlist for the Union cause on the breaking out of the Rebellion, and for fourteen months served as lieutenant colonel of the First West Virginia Volunteer Infantry. At the end of that time he was forced to resign on account of a wound received at Port Republic. During the time he was in service, however, he served well and faithfully, and it was at a time when the privations of war were most felt.

(199) RUTH CURTIS (RICE) HOUGH, was the eldest of thirteen children. Naturally of a studious disposition, she greatly desired a liberal education, but the busy care of the younger children kept her at home, and so well did she do her duty to them that they all loved and looked up to her; and in after years, instead of quoting "mother," as so many do, it was "sister Ruth did so and so." She was a consistent christian, quiet, retiring, and conscientious in all that she did. She was a great reader, and kept herself informed on all public matters, taking great interest in the political affairs of the country.

(207) Deacon BENJAMIN HALSEY RICE, was a successful farmer residing at the Rice homestead in the south-east district. He was for many years a deacon in the Center Congregational Church, and had a rare love for his church and pastor, and always attended all services possible. His love for his neighbor was more than for self. During his long illness, which was patiently borne, he was ever thoughtful for others.

(217) MARIA HUBBARD

was born in the old Hubbard homestead by the side of Spruce Glen. She was a firm, old-fashioned kind of a christian. Her church was uppermost in her heart, and had her strong love. Although she could not hear a sound, she was in church early, if possible, and rarely failed to read one or two sermons after her return. She was what is called "set in her habits and ways." Once her mind made up, nothing could change her. She remembered the first load of earth that was put to form the embankment through her father's meadow, yet no one was ever able to persuade her to ride on the cars, and it was impossible to get her near enough even to see the inside of one.

(218) BETSEY (HUBBARD) TUTTLE

was a woman of rare excellence, busy, cheerful and earnest in every good work, always ready to render loving service in the Master's work. She was one of the first members of the Guardian Society, and for more than forty years worked for the interests of the Home and all it represents. In the long ago days of anti-slavery she, with her husband, worked in behalf of that cause; and in later times they worked in the temperance movement with equal zeal.

Deacon EDMUND TUTTLE

was born in Cheshire, but spent most of his life in Meriden. Cheerful, quiet, unobtrusive in his daily life, keeping his temporal and spiritual matters well ordered, and doing with his might what his hand found to do. He was one of the earliest and most earnest workers for the abolition of slavery, and after the emancipation continued to work for the educating of the negro, by his gifts to the A. M. A. making at least twenty-seven life members of that association. He had held several offices of trust, and at the time of his death was treasurer of the Y. M. C. A., and a deacon of the Congregational Church.

(187) JOHN PECK HUBBARD

was born in Hamden and moved in boyhood with his father to West Haven, where he resided for sixty-three years. Always just, staunch and true, his character was such as those which make the foundation stones on which our nation securely rests. Modest and retiring, it was at home that he shone the brightest and best, as the many friends who have met him there will bear ample testimony.

(228) REV. GEORGE B. HUBBARD

graduated from Yale College in 1842, and from the Divinity School in 1846; and in the fall of 1847 went to Illinois as a home missionary, being stationed first at Plymouth. For thirty-eight years he was a resident of Illinois, occupying various charges till the fall of 1885, when he went to Mazomanie, Wisconsin, where he remained two and one-half years. In 1888 he went to Plymouth, Wisconsin, where he served the Congregational Church as active pastor for ten years, rounding out a half-century of service in the Christian ministry; and for two years as pastor emeritus.

(229) JOSEPH S. HUBBARD,

Professor of Mathematics in the United States Navy, and one of the officers of the National Observatory at Washington from its foundation, graduated at Yale College in 1843. While acquiring an education he evinced a decided preference for the study of mathematics and remarkable ability for mathematical investigations, to which his life was devoted. After teaching a few months in Southington, Conn., he went to Philadelphia, and was employed by the distinguished astronomer, Sears C. Walker, who a short time afterward introduced him to Capt. John C. Fremont (then just returned from his western explorations) as a suitable person to engage in the reductions of his observations. The great aptitude which he showed for such labors soon led to his appointment, by Mr. Bancroft, as a professor of mathematics in the United States Navy. This was in 1845, and a permanent career was opened to the young astronomer in the newly-established Naval Observatory. His peculiar fitness for the post to which he was called, and recognized by the arduous duties which were assigned him, and in which he displayed uncommon power. His religious character was as sincere and elevated as his mathematical attainments were brilliant. He was an elder in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington, and superintendent of the Sunday School. He loved to do good, and his leisure time was employed in deeds of charity, especially after the War began to fill the Capital with sick and wounded soldiers his efforts to relieve the suffering were unremitting. Seldom is it that intellectual and religious characteristics of so high an order are blended in one person.

(230) EMILY T. GALLUP

spent the earlier years of her life in New Haven, and obtained a thorough education in one of the best schools. She united with the Center Church, and by a consistent, well ordered life adorned her profession; was a teacher in the Sabbath School for several years, and her rare and peculiar gifts of conversation eminently fitted her for the duties of a pastor's wife.

She was married to Rev. James A. Gallup, pastor of the church in Essex, and later in Madison, where he served the Congregational Church for a third of a century, rejoicing in the material as well as the spiritual welfare of the church, a leader among the brethren in the ministry.

(238) ELI IVES MERRIMAN.

On his mother's side he was a great-grandson of the Rev. John Hubbard, second pastor of the First Congregational Church, Meriden. He united with that church in 1853, and was a faithful, efficient member, holding many offices of trust in the church. For over thirty years he was chairman of the music committee, and was one of the society's committee until the church was incorporated, when he was elected one of the trustees. He was clerk in the grocery store of Collins & Co. for several years, and went from there as bookkeeper for J. Wilcox & Co., manufacturers. He was admitted as a partner and continued as such till the firm was organized as a joint stock company, when he was elected a director, secretary and treasurer. In 1878 he became secretary and treasurer of the Meriden Malleable Iron Company, which office he held till January, 1900.

HOBART C. HULL

was born in Meriden, April 18, 1831, and lived there his useful life, prominent and active in promoting the interests of the place, able and faithful in the performance of his official duties. He was, before all things else, an honest man, true, and a Christian gentleman, despising everything false; and sincere in his devotion to what was true and best in life. He was a member of the Board of Assessors from 1879 to 1888, and also represented the Second ward in the Common Council from 1879 to 1885. He served as secretary of the Meriden, and, later, of the State Agricultural Society for a number of years.

(225) JOHN S. HUBBARD

was born in the old Hubbard homestead at Spruce Glen, where his ancestors lived two generations before him. He was a carpenter by trade.

(189) RUSSELL HUBBARD COOPER was born in Hamden, and was a direct descendant of Gen. Hubbard. He was considerably interested in politics, and served as a member of the General Assembly.

(191) JESSE COOPER,

born in Hamden, was elected several times selectman of the town, and in 1873 was elected to the General Assembly of the State, and the same year was appointed by that body one of the Commissioners for New Haven County. October 24, 1843, he was appointed First Lieutenant of the 4th Company of the Third Regiment Light Artillery of Connecticut, and on September 25, 1844, he was promoted to the captaincy of the same company. April 23, 1846, he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the Third Regiment of Artillery, and upon the death of the colonel was promoted to that office.

(212) ISAAC HOUGH, of Wolcott, spent his life in his native town, and was much esteemed by his townsmen. He held nearly every office of any responsibility that was in the gift of the electors. Was first selectman for years, town treasurer for a long period, represented the town twice in the State Legislature, and was Society's Committee of the Congregational Ecclesiastical Society for a long time. He is remembered as a public spirited citizen. For about fifteen years before his death he was an invalid, cared for most devotedly by his loving wife, who survived him nearly twenty years.

EDWARD COLLINS HALL

was a lifelong resident of Berlin, honored and respected by all who knew him. He was a successful farmer, and had held several town offices. He was also a deacon in the Congregational Church.

HENRY SCOVIL WILCOX,

the son of Henry T. and Elizabeth W. (Scovil) Wilcox, was born in Meriden, January 4, 1835. After receiving a good education at the Meriden schools, he associated himself in business with his father in the manufacturing, grocery and drug businesses. Being a lifelong resident of Meriden, he won the confidence and esteem of his townsmen, and was at different times honored with many responsible positions of trust both in public and private business affairs.

In 1852 Mr. Wilcox united with the First Congregational Church of Meriden, and faithfully performed the duties of the various offices which the church and society called upon him to fill. As in business affairs, so also in church matters he proved true and loyal to the church. In 1889 he was honored with the office of deacon, which he held till his death.

Since his marriage into the Hubbard family he was frequently in attendance at the annual reunions.

(304) HARRIET IRENE RICE

was a person of unusual gifts. As a teacher she had rare ability in imparting knowledge, and left upon the minds and hearts of her pupils the impress of her strong, earnest character. In the church of which she was a most loyal member she was a worker whose varied talents brought her into many positions of responsibility, and always the work entrusted to her hands was work well done. Especially in the Sunday School was she blessed in seeing the fruit of her quiet sowing.

But it was to home and its loved ones that she gave of her best. How many of us remember the charm of that home, lighted by her winsome presence. There, as flesh failed, we saw how the soul ripened and grew meet for the heavenly home.

(308) ELLA MARIA (RICE) HOLT

was educated in the common schools of Meriden and at Mount Holyoke Seminary, Mass., and was for a number of years a teacher in the public schools of Meriden and at the State Reformatory School. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Susan Carrington Clark Chapter. Her death occurred January 17, 1903, after seven weeks' illness.

If one trait of her character more than any other endeared her to a large circle of friends it was her thoroughly unselfish disposition and her constant regard for their welfare.

APPENDIX.

REV. DR. EZRA STILES, who married Elizabeth (86), the eldest daughter of Dr. John Hubbard, of New Haven was the son of Rev. Isaac Stiles of North Haven, Conn. He was born December 15, 1727, graduated at Yale College in 1746, and chosen tutor in 1749, in which station he remained six years, after which he studied law, and practiced at the bar in New Haven till 1755. Afterwards he entered the ministry, and was ordained October 22, 1755, as pastor of the Second Congregational Church, in Newport, R. I. In March, 1776, the events of the War dispersed his congregation and induced him to remove to Dighton. He afterwards preached at Portsmouth.

In 1777 he was chosen President of Yale College, in which station he continued till his death May 12, 1795, aged sixty-seven years.

President Stiles was one of the most learned men which this country has produced. He had a thorough knowledge of the Hebrew, Greek and Latin languages, the former of which he learned when he was about forty years of age. He had made considerable progress in the Samaritan, Chaldee, Syriac and Arabic. On the Persic and Coptic he had bestowed some attention and the French he read with great facility. He was a most impressive and eloquent preacher, for he spoke with that zeal and energy which the deepest interest in the most important subjects cannot fail to inspire. In the cause of civil and religious liberty he had a full heart and glowing soul. He published many discourses on public occasions, and a history of the three Judges of King Charles I.—Whalley, Goffe and Dixwell—in 1795. He left more than forty volumes in manuscript.

The following is taken from Holmes' "Life of Dr. Stiles:"

"On the 10th of February, 1757, Dr. Stiles was married to Elizabeth Hubbard, the eldest daughter of Colonel [that is, Dr.] John Hubbard, of New Haven. A woman of excellent accomplishments, intellectual, moral and religious; and who, therefore, deservedly possessed his tenderest affection. By her prudence, and exclusive care of everything pertaining to domestic economy, she left him in possession of his whole time for literary pursuits and pastoral duties.

“Early in the morning of the 29th of May, 1775, Mrs. Stiles departed this life, leaving the tenderest of husbands overwhelmed with unutterable sorrow. While Mrs. Stiles’ private virtues had endeared her, in the highest degree, to her husband, children and domestics, her beneficence and diffusive charities had secured the esteem of the Society, who joined with the family in paying an affectionate tribute to her memory.

“‘My kind people,’ the Doctor gratefully notices, ‘clothed the whole family and were at the whole expense of the funeral.’ ”

The following is extracted from a letter written by Rev. Dr. Stiles to Rev. John Hubbard, of Meriden dated Portsmouth, June 23, 1777, in which he expresses his gratitude to Heaven for a safe journey to that place with his seven children, etc. He says:

“Yet it was a joy, intermixed with sorrow, with a tender grief which will not cease to arise in my heart, on that day, May 29th, the day on which my dearest, never, never, more to be forgotten wife left me solitary and alone in this vale of tears. All her friends are my friends, I esteem them for her sake, as well as for their own sake. But friendship, at least an acquaintance to me singularly pleasant, continued between you and I long before the peculiar and unobliterable friendship took place between me and your dear sister, now with the blessed Jesus whom she loved and served with an obedience and virtue that would have become a Seraph, or the sister of an Apostle. It is a pleasure to think that she is now in glory, elevated above all sin, temptation, sorrow, and tears, rejoicing with my father and mother, your father and mother; and what shall I say, with all the holy and pious of her former acquaintance who have died from New Haven and Newport—with the Patriarchs and Apostles and an innumerable collection of the saints of all ages redeemed and washed in the blood of the Lamb, and, above all, with Jesus, in whom are all the treasures of good, whom she loved and adored, to whom He was truly precious, as He is to them that believe, and whom she long ago made choice of for her Everlasting Friend, her Everlasting Portion and her Exceeding great reward. Oh, my dear sir, let us follow those virtuous few who walk through the strait gate and narrow way, and who through faith and patience are now inheriting the promises.”

Nearly all the adults herein named have covenanted to walk in newness of life before the King of Glory all their days.

Truly the Lord has been a God unto our fathers and their children after them for these many generations.

REBECCA, born July 2, 1726, married, January 25, 1750, Rev. JOHN HUBBARD.

THE BERRY FAMILY OF MERIDEN, CONNECTICUT.

Three brothers, Divan, Ephraim and Thomas Berry, came here from Massachusetts and founded homes. Their parents, Thomas and Elizabeth Berry, were of Boston. Thomas it is believed, was a son of Thaddeus Berry and his wife, Hannah. Her maiden name was Hannah Farrar. Elizabeth Berry was the daughter of John Divan. Thomas Berry made his will September 3, (or 13) 1736, and the same was probated January 11, 1736-7. His widow, Elizabeth Berry, came to Meriden, and joined the Congregational Church in 1748. She died December 7, 1760, and she is recorded as "the aged Mrs. Berry."

The records show that three sons of Thomas and Elizabeth Berry were born in Boston, as follows:—

- Divan, born January 22, 1701-2.
- Ephraim, born November 9, 1706.
- Thomas, born August 14, 1708.

It does not appear that the other children settled here.

Divan Berry, of Lynn, Mass., a house carpenter, was the first of these to settle in Meriden, as he bought land in 1731, at a place called "Little Success Hill," in the southeast part of Meriden.

Thomas Berry, of Lynn, bought a farm here in 1740, in the vicinity of Spruce Glenn, and including a part of it.

Ephraim Berry, of Chelsea, Mass., bought land in Meriden about 1743, and built a large house west of the first meeting-house. This house is now standing. Ephraim Berry sold his property and removed to Woodbury, where his estate was probated in 1757, administration being granted to his widow, Mary Berry, and his eldest son, John Divan Berry.

The house of Divan Berry, Junior, was east of that of his father, and stood on the site of the house now the home of William B. Rice, on Paddock Avenue. This Berry house was burned in 1796, and was soon replaced by the present dwelling house owned by Mr. Rice.

The house of Divan Berry, Senior, is said to have been burned some time during the Revolutionary War.

The house of Thomas Berry probably was one of the houses later owned by Thomas Berry, Junior. It appears that Thomas Berry, Junior gave the north part of his farm, with a house that stood nearly opposite Levi Yale's house, to his daughter, Huldah, wife of Phinehas Lyman. The south part of Thomas Berry Junior's farm, he gave to his daughter, Jane, wife of Deacon Isaac Hubbard. This house was later owned by Isaac I. Hubbard, and it was burned with nearly all of its contents, August 31, 1863.

Thomas Berry, Junior, removed to Wallingford in or after 1796, and bought the little ancient house that was later known as the Colonel Thomas Hubbard place, later owned by Deacon Erastus Hubbard.

Divan Berry of Lynn, married Bethiah Burriage, November 18, 1725. Children:

Daniel, born October 3, 1726.

Thomas, born July 7, 1728.

Elizabeth, born May 5, 1730.

Children born in Meriden:

Hannah, baptized privately August 27, 1741; died January 29, 1741-2.

Mary baptized June 20, 1742.

Hannah, baptized May 13, 1744.

Bethiah, wife of Divan Berry, Senior, died October 15, 1752.

Divan Berry married (2d) Widow Mary Andrews, March 28, 1758. They had a daughter, Bethiah, born September 12, 1759. Died April 25, 1781.

Divan Berry, Senior, died in 1768.

Thomas Berry, 2d married Annah Perkins, June 3, 1752.

Elizabeth Berry married Tim. Foster, Junior; January 17, 1753.

John Berry married Lucy Royce, January 9, 1754.

Divan Berry, Junior, married Lydia Yale, February 22, 1758. Children:

Esther, born June 29, 1762.

Ruth, born July 29, 1764.

Lucretia, born September 2, 1766.

Mary, born April 1, 1768.

Divan, born March 7, 1773.

Divan, born October 24, 1773.

Captain Divan Berry died December 3, 1783, aged 49 years.

John Berry married Lucy Royce, January 9, 1754. Children:

Samuel, baptized October 13, 1754; died July 17, 1755.

Mehitable, baptized June 6, 1756.

Rachael, born March 29, 1765.

Samuel, born January 6, 1767.

Hannah, born January 2, 1769.

Mary Berry married Comfort Butler, May 10, 1765.

Hannah Berry married Samuel Whiting. February 27, 1766.

There was a Mary Berry who married Benjamin Merriam in Meriden, December 19, 1753, but evidence is not clear as to whose daughter she was.

Ephraim Berry married Mary Johnson in Lynn, Mass., December 17, 1729. Children:

John Divan Berry, eldest son.
Ephraim.
Asabel.

SUPPLEMENT

HUBBARD HISTORY

MERIDEN, CONN.
THE HORTON PRINTING CO.
1915

PREFACE

At the annual reunion of the Hubbard family held at the residence of Mr. Eugene Hubbard at Woodmont, Conn., July 19, 1915, the matter of printing a supplement to the Hubbard Book published in 1903 was discussed.

The Executive Committee reported that the manuscript for this supplement had been nearly completed.

It was voted that this matter be referred to the Executive Committee to ascertain how many subscriptions could be gathered for this book, and report accordingly.

In accordance with said vote we present herewith the following supplement to the Hubbard History of 1903.

The numbers preceding some of the names refer to earlier records in the Hubbard History.

Per order of the Executive Committee,

MISS ELLEN R. HOUGH,

Secretary.

Meriden, Conn., December 7, 1915.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

of Wheeling, West Virginia. Born November 8, 1825, died August 18, 1879. Owing to financial reverses in his father's family his opportunities for education were limited, but as a natural student by his own perseverance he attained a high type of self education. He was a man noted for his great physical as well as great mental strength, his genial temperament, love of humanity and great interest in municipal as well as state affairs.

As an expert in lumber he was engaged in this business during his whole life, and the Old Hubbard mill which he operated was the pioneer steam saw-mill in Virginia west of the Alleghany mountains, and was long a landmark in Wheeling.

His marriage to Lucy Anna Clark formerly of Winchester, Virginia, but then of Jefferson, Indiana, was very romantic. A few months after he met her in Wheeling he was enroute to Indiana on a hunting trip and staged twenty miles to Miss Clark's home. They were married two years later.

He was probably most widely known and admired for his public activities as one of the prominent members of the Republican party in West Virginia opposing the secession of Virginia, and favoring the separation of West Virginia from Virginia. As a candidate for congress in an over-whelming Democratic district he made a remarkable effort, and in 1868 in a few words well chosen and opportunely put, swayed the Chicago convention to action, which, contrary to the chairman's judgment, closed the nominations resulting in the choice of Vice-President Colfax.

of Wolcott was one of the most progressive farmers and business men of that section, and besides farming carrying on a large dairy business, also conducting a blacksmith shop. He was a member of Mad River Grange, and had represented the town in the Legislature. He married, April 17, 1895, Mary R. Hough, daughter of Ira H. and Martha (Bronson) Hough, of Wolcott.

MRS. HANNAH B. MERRIMAN

was a native of Plymouth, Conn., and upon her marriage to Ira H. Merriman, October 22, 1863 came to Meriden to live, where she spent the rest of her life, with the exception of the last three years, she was with her nephew in Waterbury. She was a member of the First Congregational Church and interested in its activities.

(296) MISS ALICE L. HOUGH

was a daughter of Joel and Mary (Rice) Hough of North Farms, Wallingford, was educated in the schools of Wallingford, the Normal School in New Britain, and a Collegiate Institute in New Jersey. After completing her studies she commenced teaching, and was very successful. She taught in the Wallingford High School, and a few years in one of the lower grades of the Yalesville Grammer School, and was then promoted to the position of principal, which place she held for twelve years, with the exception of a few terms.

Her interests were all centered about the welfare and improvement of the school, and her tireless attention to the needs of each individual rendered her a splendid teacher and friend, endearing herself to pupils and teachers alike. She always gave her best, her very best, and gave it freely. No service too great to be undertaken, no task too hard, if by so doing, she could in any way aid another. Self was continually put in the background, and her life was one filled with sweet service for those about her.

(221) Deacon ERASTUS HUBBARD

was born in the old Hubbard home just below the village of Tracy, and the famous culvert on the consolidated road. His birthplace is said to be one of the original homes of the old-time settlement, and the materials and character of the building would seem to confirm this view. He built his own home near to the original house, and every Hubbard has reason to remember how he and his wife kept open house, the latch-string was always out, especially to members of the Hubbard family. His work in Church and Sunday school was untiring. Although living at a distance from both, there were few whose attendance was more regular. He also served as deacon for many years. He was employed for about fifty years in a factory near his home. He survived his wife for one year and four months suffering intensely with an incurable disease.

LUCRETIA MINER HUBBARD

was a woman of great versatility. She had unusual executive ability, and her social gifts were noteworthy. Her efficient assistance to her husband in Church and Sunday school interests was invaluable, and in her own class she was much loved by the many young people who came under her influence. Of her interest in and care for the Hubbard family each one can bear evidence, and the cordial welcome on the occasion of the annual reunion were both ready and profuse. She was one of the charter members of the "Woman's Congregational Home Missionary Union of Connecticut," and for a number of years one of the vice-presidents.

(214) IRA H. HOUGH

was born and lived his whole life in Wolcott, one of the oldest and best citizens, known to every one: his occupation farming. He was a man who read a great deal and was thoroughly posted on current events not only in his own town, but in the outside world, and was not backward in expressing his opinion on men and events. After the death of his wife in 1867 he married Mrs. Martha Bronson who survived him just three months. She was a noble woman, a true friend, loyal to her family, her Church and her God. Thoughtful for others in sending comforting messages to those in suffering and in various ways ministering to any whom she could.

Deacon WILLIAM UPSON,

one of the leading citizens of Kensington was born in Wolcott, Conn., and moved to Kensington when a young man, where he spent the rest of his life. He was prominent in town affairs and had held many town offices. He was a member of the Congregational church and was one of its deacons for a long period.

WILLIAM M. COTTLE

was a native of Martha's Vineyard where he spent his early life, later going to Waterbury, Conn., where he became a carpenter contractor for a numbers of years, then he entered the florist business in which he was very successful. He was a member of the Second Congregational Church, and active in Masonic and Odd Fellows circles, a man of integrity and worth.

(223) ISAAC IVES HUBBARD

was born and lived till middle life at Spruce Glen farm, which was also the home of his father and grandfather, and where in later years the Hubbard family held many reunions; the last one in August, 1863 for four days after that the house was burned with nearly all its contents, including many valuable Hubbard relics. He soon after this built a new house, but in a few years sold his farm and moved into the city where he was employed in a factory. He was a respected citizen, a staunch republican in politics. His jovial good nature made him a welcome visitor among his friends and the family lost one of its most enthusiastic members when he died.

(240) HENRY S. MERRIMAN

was born in Meriden, and was a life long resident of his native town, being employed in several factories in the place. He was very much interested in the Hubbard gatherings and was present at nearly every one; and remembered their names and connections as well, or better than any other person.

(288) JANE ELIZABETH (HOUGH) HULL, daughter of Lyman W. and Ruth (Rice) Hough was born in Meriden, Conn., January 23, 1830. On September 4, 1859 she married Hobart C. Hull of Meriden. She died February 7, 1909.

She spent practically her entire life in Meriden, and was essentially a New Englander in the purest and best sense of the word. Her home was literally her castle, and her devotion to her husband and only sister is a choice memory over which her friends love to linger.

The death of her husband was a crushing blow to her whose home ties were so close, but with that wonderful courage which characterized her latter years, she took up the burden and by ministering to others sought to assuage her own grief. On February 15, 1905, Mrs. Hull fell and broke her hip. It was this accident which revealed the truly heroic mould of the woman. She was practically an invalid for four years, and in all that time not one complaint passed her lips. With a cheerfulness which actually disconcerted those who ministered to her, she planned what she would do in the future, and this indomitable spirit characterized her for the remainder of her life. She recovered sufficiently to walk with crutches, but in May, 1908, she broke her leg a second time. From that time she was never able to walk, though she was able to be taken about in a wheel chair. Her life was a benediction and an inspiration, and those who were privileged to know her were enriched by her friendship and example.

(219) JULIA HUBBARD PARMELEE was a woman of fine physique with the dark eyes and hair which are the inheritance of so many of the family. She was an optimist and rarely yielded to what in olden times was called the blues. The Hubbard "good times" were not complete without cousin Julia, and her greeting was earnest and cordial. She was a most regular attendant at all church services and her voice was often heard in song. After her marriage she removed to Gloversville, N. Y., but later returned to her birth-place, spending her last years among scenes and friends of her early days.

JANE BEARDSLEY HUBBARD.

At the time of her death it was said of her that she had spent sixty years in the ministry, first as teacher of young men, some of whom were afterwards prominent as foreign missionaries, later as the wife of Rev. George B. Hubbard she shared in a peculiar way the pastoral cares with her husband; among the churches in Illinois and Wisconsin.

MRS. EMMA HUBBARD,

widow of Col. Henry B. Hubbard of Wheeling, W. Virginia, was born in England, and came to this country when an infant, living here until she reached the good age of nearly ninety-seven years. She was a most lovable and popular woman, a devout Christian, a member of the Methodist Episcopal church where she was always to be found on the Sabbath.

CHARLES L. TAYLOR,

a native of Bristol, Conn., had resided in Meriden many years, was a bookkeeper by vocation, but his ability as an expert accountant placed him high in the estimation of local manufacturers, and he was engaged for this purpose solely at a number of factories and banks. He was a member and officer of Merriam Post, G. A. R.

AUGUSTINE M. LEWIS

was born in Southington, obtained his education in the public schools, and for a time was engaged in farming, but later conducted a meat market in Plantsville. He was a member of the Baptist church, and also a member of Friendship lodge F. and A. M. He served as a member of the school board for twenty-one consecutive years, and as selectman for about twenty years. He took a deep interest in the local good roads movement, and was well known throughout the state. For his second wife, he married, Oct. 16, 1893, Miss Ellen E. Tuttle of Plantsville.

WILLIS H. UPSON

was a native of Kensington where he spent most of his life and was one of the most prominent and successful business men of the place. He was postmaster for several years, also treasurer of the Berlin Savings Bank, and had represented his town in the State legislature. He was also active in the support of the Berlin Fair Association of which he was treasurer, and had always participated actively in public movements.

(237) MRS. ELIZA A. CHAMBERLAIN, wife of Lucius P. Chamberlain, was a native of Meriden, daughter of Ira and Elizabeth Merriman. She was a member of the First Congregational Church, also of the choir. She lived here until 1884 Mr. Chamberlain became farm superintendent of Storrs Agricultural school, later the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs of which for a while she was matron. They resided there for nineteen years and then removed to West Hartford, and later to East Hartford, where they celebrated their golden wedding.

(239) JANE E. (MERRIMAN) WILCOX, widow of Henry S. Wilcox, was a daughter of Ira and Elizabeth Merriman. She was born in Meriden and lived in Meriden nearly all her life. Quiet, unassuming and a true friend. She was a good musician, and for fifty-two years was a member of the First Congregational Church, and was associated with the Benevolent and Guardian societies of the church.

IRVING L. HOLT, of the firm of Holt & Stevens obtained his early education in Rockville, later going to Hall's boarding school in Ellington, Conn., and Williston Seminary at East Hampton, Mass. and then took a course at Sheffield Scientific school at Yale. He was a teacher at the State School for Boys for two and one-half years, and later was assistant secretary of the Meriden Fire Insurance Co. for nineteen years, when in 1892 he became associated with F. A. Stevens in the insurance and real estate business. He was a director of the Home National Bank, and a trustee of the City Savings Bank, and of the State School for Boys.

(255) Deacon DANA HUBBARD COOPER was born in Mt. Carmel, educated in Whitneyville and New Haven, and in early manhood united with the Congregational church in Mt. Carmel where he took an active interest in all that pertained to its welfare. He held the office of deacon for eleven years, was a member of the choir over forty years, and was connected with the Sabbath school, either as pupil, teacher, or superintendent during his entire church membership. His cheerful whole heartedness in all that he undertook and his uncomplaining patience in long and severe suffering were an example to all.

FRANK SMITH BROOKS

was born in Meriden, March 11, 1857, attended the schools of this city and in New Haven. At the age of eighteen years he entered the employ of the Bradley & Hubbard Co. and continued in the sales department of that concern for forty years.

died at his home at Valley Farm, Rocky Hill, Conn., Friday, February 25, 1916, age 85.

Mr. Chamberlain was born in West Brookfield, Mass., and was one of a family of six boys and three girls, several of whom were prominent in public life. Daniel Henry Chamberlain, Governor of South Carolina in 1876, and Rev. Leander T. Chamberlain of New York, were brothers. He received his education in the public schools of his native town and at Amherst Academy. After teaching school for several years he became connected with the State Reformatory at Westboro, Mass. He remained there for four years and then came to this city as superintendent of the farm at the Connecticut State School for Boys.

He lived in Meriden for 25 years and was at one time a member of the Common Council. He married Eliza A. Merriman (237) of Meriden, Conn., April 5, 1859.

From here he went to Storrs and was professor of agriculture there from 1884 until 1902. Because of his advancing years he resigned and removed to West Hartford and later to East Hartford and in 1910 he removed to Rocky Hill.

He was a charter member of Mansfield Grange, and was a member of the Second Congregational Church of Mansfield, Conn. He is survived by two sons, Wilbur L. Chamberlain of Rocky Hill, and Arthur M. Chamberlain of Hartford; a sister, Mrs. Harriet A. White of West Brookfield, who is now in her 96th year; and four grandchildren.

The preceding biographical sketches have been arranged to conform with those in the Hubbard Book of 1903.

The Committee considered best that the genealogy be arranged in two ways; first a record of all marriages, births and deaths which have been reported since the last publication of 1903; and second an arrangement of the same in family groups so far as possible.

The numbering used in 1903 has been continued to be used for reference so far as possible, but no new numbering has been attempted.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

ELLEN R. HOUGH (289)

daughter of Lyman W. and Ruth Rice Hough was born in Meriden, May 7, 1833. She was the great-great-granddaughter of Rev. John Hubbard, second pastor of the First Congregational Church. She was a descendant of Governor Bradford and a long line of Puritan ancestry. For thirty-five years she had been secretary of the Hubbard Family Association and had attended these reunions annually with enthusiasm. One never associated her with age. A gentlewoman of the old school, she stood the transplanting into modern life with rare grace and youthful spirit. She kept abreast of the times by reading, and her courage and patience were always an inspiration.

GEORGE HENRY HUBBARD (245)

son of John Peck Hubbard and Sarah Ann (Clark) Hubbard was born January 11, 1855 in Orange, Conn. He graduated from Yale in 1884 with a B. D. degree and was ordained to the Congregational ministry at West Haven on September 24, 1884. He was a missionary of the American Board in China for forty years being stationed in Foochow until 1891 and then in Feuekien until his retirement in 1925. During his service he had four furloughs, 1893-94, 1901-03, 1911-12, and 1920-21. He taught in the Union Theological Seminary at Foochow and served as superintendent of Ponasong Hospital. He held the position of president of United Society of Christian Endeavor for China (1900-05); secretary of Foochow Missionary Union 1888-1890; and editor of Banyon City News. He assisted in the publication of a Romanized Colloquial Bible in 1908; supervised an edition of the Foochow Colloquial Hymn Book; translated Sunday school lessons into the Foochow colloquial language and contributed articles to Missionary Herald, Gospel Union News, Golden Rule, Shanghai Mercury and Foochow Echo. He was president of Hubbard Reunion Society in 1920; member of West Haven Congregational Church since 1871.

He married Ellen Louise Peet, in West Haven on July 24, 1884.

Death, due to heart failure occurred April 15, 1928 as he was preaching at the First Baptist Church in West Haven. He was buried in Oak Grove Cemetery, West Haven.

ELLEN LOUISE PEET

was born on July 21, 1859 in Foochow, China. She was the eldest child of Lyman Burt Peet and Hannah Louisa Plimpton. Mr. Peet was one of the earliest missionaries to enter China after the opening of the Treaty Ports. Ellen lived the first twelve years of her life in Foochow. During this time two brothers, Lyman Plimpton, and Edward Wright, and one sister, Mary Susan, were born. Upon their return to the United States, the family settled in West Haven, Connecticut. The father and little Mary died while Ellen was still in her teens, but the mother struggled bravely that her children might receive the best of educations. The boys attended Yale College, and Ellen graduated from Mt. Holyoke, which was then a seminary, in 1883. During her girlhood in West Haven, she came to know and, eventually to love George Henry Hubbard, who with her, was active in the local church. On July 24, 1884 they were married in that church, and having been commissioned by the A. B. C. of F. M., sailed with the widowed mother for a lifetime of missionary work in Foochow. Although the mother of seven children, Mrs. Hubbard found time to do unmeasured work among the Chinese. Having learned the language as a child, she acquired a mastery of it attained by few foreigners. She spent much time "roman-izing" the written language and translating into this phonetic medium, the Bible and other books which Christians would need. By this means Chinese women, who had never entertained any hope of reading or writing, could be taught, in a few months, how to read the Gospels, and to write letters. Mrs. Hubbard's work was mostly with women. In her school she trained many as Bible women who could go back to their own villages and spread the Good Tidings. She also did touring with her husband and over a wide area was greatly beloved. The Chinese felt that she belonged to them, and was peculiarly able to understand them. It would be difficult to estimate how many felt a personal loss when she was suddenly called to her reward on February 14, 1925. With the exception of time spent in the United States on four furloughs, forty years of her life had been lived in China. She is buried not far from her birthplace, with the words on her tombstone: "As I have loved you, love one another."

(330) REV. WILLIAM BEARDSLEY HUBBARD eldest son of Rev. George Boardman Hubbard was born in La Moille, Illinois, November 18, 1852.

He received his preparatory education in the Public School of Aurora, Illinois, at Whipple Academy in Jacksonville.

He was graduated from Beloit College in 1876, and from Yale Divinity school in 1881. He was ordained in Center Church, New Haven—1881, his father preaching the ordination sermon.

He was a member of the Yale Dakota Band. From 1882 to 1892 he was pastor of the church at Chamberlain, South Dakota. For twenty years he served as pastor of Dakota Churches. He was secretary of the General Association of Congregational Church during this time and several times was appointed Assistant Secretary of the National Council.

In 1907 he was called to the church at Centerbrook, where he remained till his death in 1919. During this time he was elected Registrar of the Middlesex Association.

He organized the first Boy Scout Troup in that region and spared neither time nor strength to make a great success of it, and was warmly loved by all the boys brought so into his influence.

He preached his last sermon December 1, 1919 and on Wednesday, December fourth he entered into rest.

Always a student—he kept abreast of the times in his freedom of thought. It could be said of him as it was of some of his preacher ancestors, that his ministry always built up a church, and by his conciliatory conduct and advice wherever he found breaches in the church, he healed them.

There were few enterprises for the betterment of the conditions—civic—patriotic or religious with which he was not identified, and the whole countryside, whether of his parish or some other, mourned his passing. He was truly a “Man of God”, so at home with his Master that his daily life and conversation seemed a spirit of prayer.

He never chose the easiest way for himself—but with unremitting unselfishness—ministered to others.

THE FOURTH OF HIS NAME.

The Bradfords belonged to the yeoman class and amassed quite a large amount of property.

Governor William Bradford, son of William and Alice (Hausen) Bradford was born in Austerfield, England, March 1558-9. His father died when he was about two years old, (1591) and his grandfather, also William Bradford, took him. On the death of his grandfather William went to live with his uncle, Robert Bradford in Scrooby, Nottinghamshire, England. Here he joined the church when Robert Clifton and John Robinson preached. William Brewster interested himself in the lad and encouraged him in getting an education. He became proficient in Latin, Greek, French, Dutch, and also studied Hebrew. When the Pilgrims went to Holland in 1609 he went with them and was one of the number arrested in Old Boston and tried for trying to escape.

He married (1) Dorothea May of Wisebeach, England in 1613. She was a granddaughter of John May, Bishop of Carlisle. She was drowned in the harbor off the coast of Massachusetts during her husband's absence with a company trying to find a suitable site for a town.

On the death of John Carver, William Bradford was elected

Governor of the Colony and served in that capacity for 35 years.

While in Holland he had followed the trade of "fustian weaver". In Leyden he learned the art of democratic governing and independence of thinking and good business management. It was because of the last that he became one to assume the debt of the colony to the Plymouth Company and free themselves within ten years.

Two years after he was made Governor he wrote to Mistress Alice Carpenter, widow of Edwin Southworth, whom he had loved before either of them had married. He had been refused by her parents because he was not of sufficiently high birth. He wrote asking her to come out to the New World where he would be at her service. "Sweet Mistress Alice" came on "Ye Goode Ship Anne" and made for the Governor an ideal home. They were married August 14, 1623. She died in 1671 while the Governor died May 9, 1657.

Children:

- (1) John.
- (2) Major William, born June 17, 1624, Plymouth. Moved to Kingston, Mass. Appointed Assistant Deputy Governor. One of Gov. Andros' council in 1687. Chief military officer in Plymouth Colony. Married.
 - (1) Alice, daughter of Thomas and Wealthean Richards of Weymouth, Mass. who died December 12, 1671, born 1627.

Major William Bradford, died February 20, 1704. Age 79.

Epitaph:

He lived long but still was doing good
And in his country's service lost much blood.
After a life well spent, he's now at rest
His very name and memory is blest.

Melatiah Bradford, born 1665-6. Married.

(1) John Steele of Norwich, Conn. Son of Jas. and Bethia (Bishop) Steele of Hartford, Conn. and grandson of George Steele, brother of the first John. He died March 6, 1627-8.
